

and Jones said he's feeling fine, but he has ended

Publicado por elaine95 - 29 Oct 2019 06:41

Now that college football's regular season is over Color Rush Jace Sternberger Jersey , the NFL is able to play a few games on Saturdays. Week 15 sees a pair of pro games taking place on Saturday, as a foursome of AFC teams are in action today. Only one appears headed for the playoffs, as the Houston Texans appear to be in solid command of the AFC South. They are traveling to the East Coast this week, however, taking on the 4-9 Jets in the Meadowlands in today's early game. Then in the evening we have the Browns and Broncos

Cheap Jace Sternberger Jersey

, two teams sitting below .500. The Browns still have something to play for, however; because of the Pittsburgh Steelers' recent collapses, there is still a pathway for Cleveland to win the division by winning out and finishing 8-7-1. The Browns have not beaten Denver in any of their past 11 tries, but perhaps there's something different about this team now that Hue Jackson is gone. Tune in throughout the afternoon and evening and join us in the comments as we follow along with today's games. Houston Texans vs. New York Jets 4:30 PM Eastern Time MetLife Stadium East Rutherford, NJ NFL

Network Commentators: Curt Menefee

Jace Sternberger Jersey Womens

, Nate Burleson, Steve Mariucci, Melissa Stark Cleveland Browns at Denver Broncos 6:20 PM Mountain Time (8:20 PM ET) Broncos Stadium at Mile High Denver, CONFL Network Commentators: Mike Tirico, Kurt Warner

Jace Sternberger Green Bay Packer

, Peter Schrager Over his first two seasons, Packers running back Aaron Jones averaged just over 10 touches per game but everyone expected that number to go up with head coach Matt LaFleur now running the offense. Jones professed his excitement this offseason about the role that LaFleur had in mind for him and the first two weeks of the season have shown why he was looking forward to the new system. Jones has 41 touches over the first two games and set a career high with 23 carries in last Sunday's victory over the Vikings. All of those touches come with a lot of hits and Jones said he's feeling fine, but he has ended the last two seasons on injured reserve and the Packers would like him on hand for the long haul this year. That's why LaFleur is talking about finding more work for Jamaal Williams in the weeks to come. "I think each game can dictate how much he's going to carry the ball," LaFleur said, via the . "But I think all in all

Jace Sternberger Jersey 2019

, I mean, that is a pretty physical position, and we'd like to keep a good balance between him and Jamaal, because we think Jamaal is a pretty darn good back as well. So we'd like to even out those touches a little bit." As the head coach and offensive playcaller, LaFleur has the ability to even them out but such plans may be easier said than carried out as long as Jones continues to produce as he did against Minnesota.

=====